Notes to Editors:
About the works

• John Akomfrah, Mimesis: African Soldier, 2018, Glasgow Museums / Bristol Museum & Art Gallery
A powerful addition to Bristol and Glasgow Museums’ collections, visibly telling the stories of people from the Commonwealth who were called on to serve in war for Britain.

• Adeela Suleman, After All It’s Always Somebody Else Who Dies, 2017, Manchester Art Gallery
This ornate repousse steelwork echoes the decorative traditions of the Mughal style and is a memorial to the victims of violence in the artist’s home city of Karachi.

• Dorothea Tanning, Tableau Vivant, 1954, Scottish National Gallery of Modern Art, Edinburgh
This cryptic work featuring Tanning’s dog Katchina was included in the artist’s first exhibition in Britain and draws on Surrealist themes of power, love, humour and eroticism.

• Lawrence Toynbee, Mid-Week Practice at Stamford Bridge, 1953, National Football Museum, Manchester
This atmospheric painting shows the Chelsea players practising at their home ground and depicts the look of the stadium in the 1950s, during a period of transformation for the club.
• JMW Turner, Walton Bridges, 1806, Norwich Castle Museum & Art Gallery
This early oil painting by Turner may be the first he composed directly from nature and is a centrepiece of the gallery’s early-19th-century collection.

• Carlo Dolci, St Agatha, c1665-70, Osterley House, Isleworth
This devotional picture of the Christian martyr St Agatha was originally hung in Osterley House in the 18th century and now returns to grace its Yellow Breakfast Room.

• Robert Howlett, Brunel in front of the launching chains of SS Great Eastern, 1857, Brunel Museum, London
This iconic photograph is both a defining image of Brunel and a reminder of the ambition and might of Victorian engineering.

• Joseph Gott, Greyhound with Puppies, 1825, Barber Institute of Fine Arts, Birmingham
This marble sculpture is a fine example of the neoclassical style that flourished across Europe in the mid-18th century.

• Margaret Gillies, Portrait of Charles Dickens, 1843, Charles Dickens Museum, London
This fine portrait of the 31-year-old author was exhibited at the Royal Academy summer exhibition in 1844 before disappearing for 130 years. It now takes pride of place at the Dickens Museum.

• Unknown artist, The Spanish Armada off the Coast of England, c1590-1610, Ulster Museum, Belfast
This detailed miniature painting believed to be by a Flemish artist presents a vivid depiction of the defeat of the Spanish Armada by the British navy in 1588.

Art Fund is the national fundraising charity for art. In the past five years alone Art Fund has given £34 million to help museums and galleries acquire works of art for their collections. It also helps museums share their collections with wider audiences by supporting a range of tours and exhibitions and makes additional grants to support the training and professional development of curators. Art Fund is independently funded, with the core of its income provided by 151,000 members who receive the National Art Pass and enjoy free entry to over 240 museums, galleries and historic places across the UK, as well as 50% off entry to major exhibitions and subscription to Art Quarterly magazine. In addition to grant-giving, Art Fund’s support for museums includes Art Fund Museum of the Year (won by St Fagans National History Museum near Cardiff in 2019) and a range of digital platforms. www.artfund.org
